CASE OF ABDUCTION.

Magistrate Chappell sends to the Higher Court the case of Will LeRoy and His Wife, Ollie LeRoy, charged With the Abduction of Mary Todd, Daughter of J. B. Todd.

After a preliminary hearing, Magistrate J. H. Chappell on Saturday sent to the higher court the case of Will LeRoy and his wife, Ollie LeRoy, charged with the abduction of Mary Todd, the fourteen year old daughter of Mr. J. H. Todd, of this city. The girl was taken from the home of her aunt, three miles from the city, on the 22nd day of May, and since that time has been in Greenville, and is still in that place. The parties charged with the crime were in Newberry during the building of the Mollohon Mill, LeRoy working on the building under Mr. Grandy.

It appears from the testimony taken on Saturday that on the day named LeRoy's wife drove up to the house of Mr. J. H. Todd's sister, with whom Mary Todd was living, and made the request that Mary be allowed to drive about a mile down the country with her in order to get some tools which belonged to her husband. The reason given was that she could not drive and hold her baby, whom she had with her in the buggy. The request was granted, but instead of going the way proposed, the horse was turned around and started towards town. On the way LeRoy himself, who had been hiding in some bushes near by, was picked up. Nothing was heard of the girl that day and night and next day a warrant was issued for the arrest of the parties.

The warrant was sent to the Sheriff of Greenville and the parties were arrested in Easley during the month of June. Bond was given for appearance here on Saturday, and on Saturday for appearance at the next term of court for this county.

The prosecution was represented by Col. O. L. Schumpert and the defendants by Mr. J. B. Hunter.

This is the first trial in a case for abduction ever held in Magistrate Chappell's court.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Little Negro Girl Caught By the Cowcatcher and Her Body Mangled and Strwn for a Mile Along the Track

Carrie Metts, a little negro girl of about ten years of age, was killed at Helena on the Southern road by train No. 15 bound for Greenville, at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. The accident occurred at the crossing just above the station. It was brought out in the testimony taken at the coroner's inquest that the train was within one hundred yards of the crossing when she was about thirty-five yards distant, and that she attempted to cross in front of the moving train. She was exactly in the centre of the track when caught by the cowcatcher of the engine. Her body was horribly mangled, small pieces being strewn for a mile along the track.

Her parents are Dan and Carrie Metts, negroes living at Helena. Their home is on the Newberry side of the road, and Carrie Metts had been sent by them to Mr. Julian's store for a package of soap. It was on her return, with the package in her hands, that the accident occurred.

Coroner Lindsay immediately impelled a jury. The verdict was "That the said Carrie Metts came to her death by trying to cross the track ahead of the train, and being caught by said train No. 15 on the 19th day of July, 1902."

COUNTY CAMPAIGN AT LITTLE MOUNTAIN.

(Concluded from First Page.)

against it did not have the blood of the father of an oppressed child in their veins. If his friend Kibler were a mill operative he would support the bill. But he was gone overboard, there was no chance for him. He knew nothing of that paternal love in the heart of every father. He believed there was some chance for reformation in his friend Dominick.

Every progressive State in the Union had passed such a law.

MR. E. H. AULL,

a year ago, had stood on this platform and attempted to make a speech on education. That question, the question of education, was as important in a meeting of this kind as at Newberry College reunion.

The people did not want a man to represent them who simply advocated or opposed child labor, or State institutions, or good roads. If that was what was wanted, just as well send a pole down there and label it. The people needed a man with broad views, and with the ability and energy to work without ceasing for their best interests, in conjunction with the interests of the people of the other forty counties of this State.

The question most interesting to the people was the question of expenditures. He did not see much chance of reducing taxation, but the main thing at present was to secure an equitable assessment of all property for the purpose of taxation. To do this, a township board of assessors should be provided, and they with the auditor should meet in each township and there assess the property in that township.

He discussed good roads at some length, favoring building them from one end of the county to the other, using county chaingangs supplemented with convicts from the State penitentiary and increase of commutation tax to three dollars.

Favored building up good common school system. Thought appropriations to State colleges might be cut down a little, but they have become the policy of the State and he did not want to see any of them pulled down.

As to the child labor bill, nothing should be done to cripple the manufacturing interests of the State. Was opposed to children working from before sunup until after dark, without sunshine and fresh air, 11 hours a day, 66 hours a week, and 52 weeks in the year. To carry legislation into the family circle was a dangerous thing. But unless something was done, some compromise satisfactory to operatives and to mill authorities was reached and reached now, there was going to be some legislation, some radical legislation, and it was coming in the near future. Some compromise, just to the mills, just to the operatives, just to the children should be reached now, without legislation, if possible, and if that was not possible, then get the best bill through that we can. He wanted especially to impress the fact that if something was not done now, some compromise reached, if possible, without legislation, if not, by legislation, the legislation that came was going to be radical.

HON. JOHN F. BANKS

said that, on the child labor question, Mr. Taylor in private conversation told him the ill these people complained of.

Mr. Taylor: A private conversation is not to be used in a public speech.

Mr. Banks: It is said then by some persons that the children were forced to work in the factories. Mr. Taylor has said on the stand that all he wanted was that the parent have complete control of his family. He did not see how this could be secured if the State says to him that his child can't be put to work in the mill.

What would be the results of the child labor bill? Don't you know it won't do to turn these children loose on the streets until they are 12 years old? Don't you see it will lead to compulsory education, and that to negro rule? He loved the children. They were just as dear to him as to anybody.

Another objection was that it was class legislation.

If there was any owner of a mill who wanted to force the children in the mill, then he wanted to see a law passed prohibiting this, but there was no use to go any further.

Conflicts between labor and capital were becoming every day more frequent, and he honestly believed the time was coming when labor would have to shoulder the musket to ward off the oppression of capital. It was coming, but it was going to take a long time, and let it come. That was no argument. In the near future this State would be an eminently manufacturing section, and no friction ought to be created.

Family government was the primal government of the world, made so by the fiat issued at the time of Eden's Garden, and should not be interfered with.

The candidates for the office of SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION.

Mr. Thos. E. Wicker said there were political questions demanding the attention of the people, but the most important question confronting this was the subject of education, practical common school education. Too little attention is being paid in the schools to the subject of reading. The most important part of a child's education is to learn to read correctly.

Mr. E. S. Werts thought in order to have good common schools there should be co-operation between State, counties, county superintendents, trustees and patrons. They must pull together, trying to mould the characters of our young people, enabling them to meet the battles of life. During his term in the office to which he was seeking reelection he had striven as best he could for the advancement and upbuilding of the schools, and only wanted to be judged on his record. If elected this time, promised not to ask for reelection two years hence.

Mr. J. S. Wheeler said he was in the township in which he was born and didn't think it necessary for him to make a speech. Was a graduate of Newberry College. Had given his life to the common schools, and was interested deeply in this question. Believed the county schools ought to prepare scholars for sophomore class in college.
